How does the new operator work in JavaScript?

The new operator uses the internal [] method, and it basically does the following: Initializes a new native object Sets the internal [] of this object, pointing to the Function prototype

New technology to integrate solar panels into buildings

An EU-funded project is developing a new generation of solar panels that can be part of traditional house elements like roofs, windows and glass facades. The innovative solar panels can be

When to use "new" and when not to, in C++?

You should use new when you wish an object to remain in existence until you delete it. If you do not use new then the object will be destroyed when it goes out of scope.

Integrated photovoltaic applications: Technological advancements.

Through case studies across different regions and sectors, we highlight successes and challenges in deploying integrated PV-from solar facades on commercial buildings to agrivoltaic farms.

Is JavaScript's "new" keyword considered harmful?

It is NOT 'bad' to use the new keyword. But if you forget it, you will be calling the object constructor as a regular function. If your constructor doesn't check its execution context then it won't notice that 'this'
